he who knows and knows that he knows is wise follow him ancient proverb during a long career of public service as a government procurement and contracting official i am still surprised to find big successful corporations making the same mistakes that neophytes in government contracting mak and this is particularly true in the matter of writing proposals which are the crucial element in most major procurement awards it s true enough as many suspect that the big well known company has something of an edge over the smaller lesser known company com peting for any given government contract psychologically at least the typical government executives whether contracting officials or program managers tend to have a bit more faith in the ability of the large company to carry out the program successfully all things being equal then the big company is more likely to get the nod however because the large companies are well aware of that many tend to become fat dumb and happy they try to coast or rest on their laurels that is they get careless about making a strong enough case for themselves in writing their proposals and when they lose often to smaller companies they are both puzzled and outraged they have for gotten that all government procurement is a competition usually both technical and cost competition and that the little guy can win against the big guy if he tries hard enough and especially if the bigger guy is a bit careless and does not put out his best effort excerpt from the law of government contracts nearly one hundred thousand corporations and firms arc interested in governmental contracts it is therefore obvious that it would be of advantage to both the lawyer and the business man to have in readily accessible book form the statutes providing for and regulating contracts with the government the leading decisions construing these statutes and practical suggestions as to the status and duties of the government officers in calling for bids and awarding contracts a clear statement of the rights and obligations of the bidders to whom these contracts are awarded and a trustworthy description of the procedure for the collection of and enforcement of claims against the united states arising out of such contracts is of equal importance the preparation of the present volume was commenced prior to the outbreak of the great war war work of various kinds has interfered greatly with its progress it is now complete and the confusion and perplexities of emergency war preparations which naturally led to errors of judgment in regard to government contracts and misinterpretation of statutes and decisions bearing thereon render the early production of the book most desirable at the suggestion of members of the national association of credit men with which organization the author has been pleasantly identified for some years the book has been so written and compiled as to be of service not only to the trained lawyer but also to the intelligent business man thus it is that this work in addition to the statutes and to the discussions of the cases interpreting them also contains much material of a practical nature not ordinarily found in legal works about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks.com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
